Experience Counts

enjoy reading about places I've never been, or events I'll never see. Reading about (or watching on TV or online) things that are beyond our own experience is a key part of cultivating an open mind, and achieving a greater understanding of the world.

At the same time, we all know the limitations of this method. Reading about tropical heat is absolutely nothing like experiencing it. Feeling the sting of wind on a mountaintop cannot be related in video form. The scents of food in an outdoor market halfway around the world don't come through in a photo. Some things have to be experienced to really know them. And not just things that are far away: many day-to-day emotions and experiences have to be felt to be truly understood.

We all know this, but what I want to stress is that knowing it is not enough, we have to act on it. And (surprise!) we have to act on it with regard to our Jewish lives. The organized Jewish community spends huge amounts of time and money on trying to get Jews to feel like they are Jewish, to identify as Jews, and if you're reading this, you likely agree this is an important goal. But we have to realize it is an insufficient goal. Feeling Jewish is a good start, but the real experience comes with living Jewishly.

The sting of the wintry blast is only truly known when experienced, not just observed from afar. Same with Jewish life. We can say that Shabbat helps establish a more humane rhythm to life, but thinking it doesn't do the trick, you have mentally and physically do Shabbat to get it. We can say that kashrut can lead to a more profound understanding of our food chain and our responsibilities to the world, but knowing it is not the same as taking this lesson into your body each time you eat. You can know that we are here to help others, but if you don't practice tzedakah you don't know the resonance of using your being to act in a more Godly way. Even prayer is not truly in the mind: the sages of old say we have to form each word with our mouths, audible if only to ourselves, when we pray. Keeping it between your ears does not do the trick; bringing your prayer into the world requires a physical act.

This may be one reason Jewish Law is called Halakhah: the way we walk. There's action involved, there's knowledge that experience drives our world. I say all of this because, as important as it is to be Jewish, it's crucial to do Jewish. Each day I see people whose lived experience of Judaism enriches our community: they are more than a collection of good intentions. They are Jewish not just by birth but by deed. They walk the walk.

I know that, by definition, the readers of a synagogue bulletin are more engaged than others. I know that many of you are deeply Jewish in ways I don't always see. But I want to stress that the lifeblood of the Jewish people has always been Judaism, and practicing the rituals of our people always goes hand-in-hand with practicing the ethics of our people. They go together.

There are many ways to live a Jewish life, many ways to connect our lives to something greater than ourselves, to connect our actions with our understanding of God. But we have to consciously make it happen, not just in thought but in deed. The experience of doing Jewish is more powerful than being Jewish. This winter and this spring, look for chances to translate what you are into who you are. I'll be doing the same. I may not have the opportunity to feel tropical heat this winter, but I can direct my actions in a way that creates a feeling that can't guite be explained, but can only be experienced. Wherever you find yourself, you should be blessed with the same.

a word from THE CO-PRESIDENTS

Congregations are like cats or like dogs. A cat observes you from afar, trying to decide if you are worth knowing. A dog runs right up to you, eager to make friends."

We beg to differ! At 375 Aberdeen Avenue no one observes from afar very long. We all become friends, and even our cats become dogs.

Ira Greenspoon and Cindy Richter

At Beth Jacob, we are open to the possibility that each new person we greet has the potential to bring holiness into our lives and visa versa. Although we are classified as a religious institution, we are just as strongly a community too.

Would you like some proof?

The number of people attending all of our services is growing as is the number of regulars. Every Shabbat morning kiddish since Sukkot has been sponsored, except Dec. 31st. Sponsors delight in sharing with everyone the special milestones, yahrzheits, and "just because" occasions that are important in their lives. Aliyot are generously shared by the gabbaim who encourage involvement and are pleasantly helpful in teaching the skills needed to participate in services.

Guests who have come to services are delighted to feel so welcomed. If you haven't joined us lately because you may be shy or may not know anyone, we encourage you to come to a minyan, a Shabbat service or a seudah shlishit. (Seudat shlishit happens every Saturday evening between Mincha and Ma'ariv. We all enjoy some snacks while the Rabbi leads us in study sessions that stimulate us intellectually. This has become a customary part of our Shabbat evening service and is thoroughly enjoyed by everyone in attendance.) We all have existing weekly commitments, but we believe that even small changes can lead to dynamic and refreshing renewal. At Beth Jacob, it will not take you months to feel at home. Our "regulars" are sincere, welcoming and helpful.

Upcoming social events like the Israeli Film Festival, the 2012 Shushan Olympics (Purim), congregational dinners and the Big Night featuring comic Modi, will engage and entertain you. Imagine smiling uncontrollably, kvelling from the children as they participate in services or being witness to 99-year-old Sam Lewis as he blesses the kiddish challot. (We're convinced that he charges the challot to taste sweeter than ever!) Don't wait until June for the comedian, catch Ira as he ponders the weekly parsha and makes announcements. (Disclaimer: the beliefs and opinions of one copresident are not necessarily endorsed by the other co-president. But she is always amused.)

Our mission is to continue to be aware and sensitive to all members of our community. One way to do this is by participating in an accessibility standard for customer service, training our staff and lay people to provide assistance with dignity and skill. We will also review our shul's standards of communication. In addition, training on the usage of a defribulator, an important assistive devise which is being donated donated by your fellow congregants, will begin this month.

These are just some of the red carpet features to welcome you to your shul. If you come to shul regularly, there is probably more than one reason why you do so. Spread the word! Bring a friend, make a friend, gain a pound, enjoy a joke, be stimulated, sing, hum, keep the beat on your seat, exchange views and news. We are eager to greet you soon.

The Beth Jacob Purim Games are on!

Hamiltonians in Israel

How living in Hamilton informed their aliyah experience

Former Hamiltonians living in Israel like to say that the aliyah rate from Hamilton is the highest per capita of any other North American city. While this may or may not be the case, the question of how living in Hamilton influenced their aliyah is worth asking. Wendy spent three weeks in Israel in the summer of 2011 interviewing a number of former Hamiltonians. She will share the results of her research during her talk.

Wendy Schneider is the editor of the Hamilton Jewish News. She studied at both Tel Aviv and Hebrew Universities and graduated from McGill University with degrees in Jewish Studies and Jewish Education. Co-creator, with Billy Shaffir, of the Hamilton Jewish Project: an oral history of Jewish Hamilton, past co-president of Beth Jacob Synagogue, and a dedicated yoga teacher. Her passion for all things related to Israel began at the age of 17 and continues to this dav.

Marie McKeary on Sunday, March 25, 2012 speaking on the topic

Refugee stories as Mirror Reflections on the Journey to Health

Long wait times, inadequate resources, physician shortages, and other 'ailments' characterize our current health care system, leading to negative experiences for both consumers and professionals.In this session, we will venture on a 'journey to health' where you will hear the stories of those who carry the designation of 'refugee'. Their social identity, combined with the pre-transition and post phases of their journey, determines both their health status and their access to health care in Canada. Ultimately, we are offered a unique lens from which to view both the components and the importance of health, including access to health care, within all of our lives.

Marie McKeary is a sociologist who specializes in health care issues, with a focus on diversity/ accessibility. As a lecturer at McMaster University she was associated with Sociology, Indigenous Studies, Women Studies and the Department of Social Work. She also earned an MSW and has held numerous counselling positions. As an independent consultant she has collaborated with numerous community and non-profit organizations and all three levels of government. Currently, she is the Research Facilitator for the McMaster Institute of Environment and Health (MIEH) and carries a diverse portfolio of research projects examining the health impact of both our social and physical environment.

Services at 9:00 a.m. Breakfast at 9:30 a.m. Talk at 10:00 a.m. Cover charge for breakfast: $5.00 (waived for students) For reservations & information call: Maureen Price 905-523-8067.

OUT OF THE COLD

e are more than half way through the twelfth season of our Out of the Cold Program (OOTC) and although we have experienced only one cold alert night, the number of guests coming to eat is growing week to week. So, why do so many people still choose to identify themselves as needy?

One reason which Sister Carole Anne recently revealed to me. "Loneliness and the feeling of being unwanted is the most terrible poverty." Mother Teresa. Upon reflection, it is very true. They are hungry for company. Many of our guests arrive alone and leave alone, but they don't dine alone. Our volunteers, half of which are Beth Jacob members, strike up conversations, they joke and compliment and commiserate, they make me aware of guests' physical needs so that I can clothe them or give them the social assistance referrals from which they can benefit. Being part of our dinner gathering, relieves the stress that is caused by hunger and loneliness.

The weather matters little to many of our guests who are underemployed therefore, unable to afford the luxury of three meals a day. Many can't afford to manage the day to day expenses of rent, utilities, debt and food.

The weather matters little to guests who have mental and/or physical disabilities which afford them very few choices living on social assistance or to the guests entering society from places beyond our community or from jail and who have a distance to go before finding their ways into society.

Every week, our fabulous cooks anxiously beg to know the number of guests that were fed the night before. These people among all the other righteous OOTC supporters define their well-being, not by the number of possessions they acquire, but by the number of mouths they feed. Living jewishly includes living a life of sharing and giving, welcoming the poor and the stranger.

Please "digest" the beautiful first-hand account of what it is like to be an OOTC guest below, submitted last December.

For the past 12 years, Hamilton's needy, bereft and woebeaone have been quests at yummy food-ins by volunteers at a program called Out of the Cold. Program volunteers are the dedicated cherubs deserving of wide angelic wings. Each week, on six different evenings, 100 or more guests crowd the basements of downtown churches where they are met by humble and cheerful people with positive countenances, warm glows, the welcome aroma of homemade soup, nutritious entrees and dessert treats. ... Coordinators are in charge of all facets of this program: selecting a weekly menu, buying the food, preparing it with love, and allocating kitchen helpers, furniture set-ups, food servers and clean-up staff. The program is funded entirely by individual donors, not by government grants. Particularly pojanant is the love all the volunteers pour out during these sombre. cold, winter nights, including this Christmas season. For the quests, it is as though angel dust is sprinkled on those who show up with empty tummies and broken hearts overflowing. Many of the guests hurt in a way that can't be put into words. Many of the guests carry a heavy load of bad luck or tarnished dreams. If not for this winter program coordinated by angels, the pitiable, vulnerable and lonely guests forgotten by our larger society would not possess the courage to make it through to another day. OOTC volunteers are very special angels indeed, because they divinely empower and encourage societal outcasts who, especially at Christmastime, live in an internment camp of abject poverty of being.

PASSOVER

Beginning on Purim:

- Sale of Chametz forms are available at shul,
- or at rabbiselsberg.blogspot.com!
- The Rabbinical Assembly Passover guide, also at shul or at rabbiselsberg.blogspot.com!
- I recommend a printed haggadah, but if you prefer to download and print it out, check www.jewishfreeware.org.

Thursday, April 5 – Bedikat Hametz

Search for Hametz at or after 8:30pm

Friday, April 6 – Ta'anit B'chorot, First Seder night

- Shacharit 7:15am
- Siyyum and Breaking of the Fast of the Firstborn: 8am
- Finish eating Hametz before: 11:10am
- Sell, hide or burn Hametz before 12:15pm
- Candle lighting: at or before 7:34pm
- Please note: no evening services are scheduled at shul for the two nights of seder.
- If you have no place to share a seder, or have an extra seat (or more!) at your seder table, please let Rabbi Selsberg know.
 Beth Jacob does not have one big 'community seder', in part because much of the power of this night comes from its setting in a home. Please help us ensure that no one is left out on this night!

Passover Recipes

Passover Stuffing (Cindy Richter)

Chop and saute 3 cooking onions in lots of oil with 4 minced garlic cloves until golden. Chop 5 celery stalks. Add to onions and saute for 2 more minutes.Peel and grate 4 carrots and drain 1 can of sliced water chestnuts. Add to saute mixture for two minutes. Measure 4 cups of matzah farfel and moisten and drain but don't leave it too wet. Mix everything together. Season with 2 tsp chicken soup base powder, salt, pepper, paprika, garlic powder, thyme and parsley. Mix well. Spray a 9 x 13 dish. Add mixture, cover with foil. Bake at 350 for 40 minutes.

Potato, Carrot, and Zucchini Kugel (Sandra Rabin) Makes 8 servings

5 large eggs

3 medium onions (1 1/4 to 1 1/2 pounds total), peeled, cut into 1-inch pieces, divided 14 green onions, coarsely chopped, divided

- 5 8-ounce russet potatoes, peeled, cut into 1-inch cubes, divided
- 2 medium carrots, peeled, cut into 1-inch pieces, divided
- 1 large zucchini, trimmed, cut into 1-inch pieces, divided
- 1/2 cup unsalted matzo meal
- 2 1/2 teaspoons salt
- 1/2 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper

8 tablespoons melted unsalted pareve margarine, vegetable oil, or melted chicken fat, divided

Position rack in top third of oven and preheat to 400°F. Combine 3 eggs, half of onions, and half of green onions in processor. Blend until mixture is almost smooth and fluffy. Add half of potatoes, half of carrots, and half of zucchini. Blend until vegetables are finely chopped (bits of carrots and zucchini will remain). Transfer mixture to large bowl. Repeat with remaining 2 eggs, onions, and green onions, then potatoes, carrots, and zucchini. Add to mixture in bowl. Whisk in matzo meal, 2 1/2 teaspoons salt, and 1/2 teaspoon pepper, then 1/4 cup margarine. Brush remaining 1/4 cup margarine over bottom and sides of 13x9x2-inch glass baking dish. Place dish in oven until very hot, about 7 minutes. Pour kugel batter into hot dish. Bake until top is brown and crisp, about 1 hour. Cut kugel into squares; serve hot alongside brisket.

Lemony Leek and Mushroom Soup (Shlomit Acciaroli) Stock Ingredients

7 cups spring water; 1 cup chopped red onion green parts from 2 leeks, well washed; 4 sprigs Italian parsley 1 large celery stalk, coarsely chopped; 2 vegetable bouillion cubes

Soup Ingredients

- 2 tablespoons olive oil, extra virgin and first cold-pressed
- 4 large leeks, white and lightest green parts only, well rinsed and chopped
- 2 medium turnips, peeled and cut into 1/2-inch dice, or 1 large butternut squash
- 1 large celery stalk, diced
- 2 bay leaves

pulp and juice of 4 large, ripe Persimmons, discarding the peel

12 ounces white mushrooms, sliced

- Juice of 1 lemon, or more to taste
- salt and freshly ground pepper to taste
- 2 to 3 tablespoons minced fresh parsley

2 to 3 tablespoons minced fresh dill

1 cup cooked quinoa for garnish*

Prepare your quinoa by first rinsing the grains, then boiling 1 part quinoa grains to 2 parts spring water. Set it aside. Combine all the ingredients for the stock in a soup pot or large saucepan. Bring to a boil, then cover and simmer for 30 minutes. Let stand until needed, then strain before using. Heat the oil on medium heat in a large soup pot. Add the chopped leeks and saute over moderate heat, stirring frequently, until the leeks just begin to go limp. Add the stock, turnips, celery, and bay leaves. Bring to a boil, then cover and simmer for 10 minutes. Add the Persimmon pulp and juice and mushrooms and continue to simmer for 20 more minutes or until the vegetables are cooked to taste. Sprinkle the quinoa on the surface of the soup and allow to warm for 1 or 2 more minutes. Transfer to a soup tureen or large serving bowl and serve at your Seder table. Serves 8 - 10
